

Neil Saldia

Resource Speaker Profile · Grateful Prints AI Academy

Role	Founder, Grateful Prints
Focus	AI Training & Digital Productivity Practitioner
Background	Designer and Entrepreneur
Based in	Iligan City, Lanao del Norte, Philippines
Languages	English, Filipino, Bisaya
Contact	business@gratefulprintsph.com

Profile

Neil Saldia is the founder of Grateful Prints, the Iligan City-based printing ecosystem that connects customers with print shops, designers, crafters and riders. He designs, builds and runs the Grateful Prints platform and its business operations himself.

His work spans creative design and digital business operations. He uses AI-assisted tools every day to design, write, plan, support customers and build software, and he teaches those same workflows in plain, practical language.

Neil is also a youth pastor. His approach to technology is people-first: AI should help Filipino professionals and businesses do better work, with people staying responsible for every decision.

Speaking and training topics

- AI for Print Shops
- AI for LGUs & Government
- AI for Local Businesses & MSMEs
- AI for Schools & Educators
- AI for Designers, Creatives & Freelancers
- Custom Corporate & Community Training
- Practical prompt writing for everyday work
- Responsible AI, data privacy and human verification
- AI-assisted design ideation and creative workflows

Approach

- Plain, practical explanations with Filipino examples
- Hands-on exercises on real-world tasks
- Responsible use: verification, privacy and accountability
- People first: we build people first, and people build the business

This profile lists roles and work that can be verified. It does not claim academic degrees, certifications, accreditation or prior client engagements.